Principal at Kingdom Leadership Academy

Sandy Woods played “school” ever since she could hold a pencil. With over two decades of experience, she began her teaching career at Comenius School for Creative Leadership (CSCL) in 2000, where she later served as principal from 2010 until transitioning to Kingdom Leadership Academy (KLA). As the principal of KLA, Sandy is passionate about changing classrooms from dull places of intellectual stagnation into vibrant oases of sensory engagement where each student is challenged to excel.

Sandy firmly believes that the key to equipping today’s youth to be resilient followers of Christ lies with parents, teachers and students espousing a Biblical Worldview. Under her leadership, KLA promotes a kingdom education philosophy that recognizes and nurtures the unique gifts and talents of each student, guiding them in the path outlined in Proverbs 22:6: “Train up a child in the way he should go.”

Sandy is married to her high school sweetheart, Jeff, a worship leader and songwriter with the Providence Road Band. Together, they are committed to creating an environment where faith and learning intersect to shape the leaders of tomorrow.
